

U.S. DRUG POLICY COSTS LIVES.

Children, poor people and the environment all pay a high price for the drug war in Colombia. So do American taxpayers, under a policy known as "Plan Colombia."

Ineffective. After decades of effort, cocaine and heroin are as cheap and available as ever on U.S. streets.
Bad for the environment. Aerial spraying to kill drug crops has killed nearly 2 million acres of rainforest.
Bad for the budget. Hundreds of millions of American tax dollars support Plan Colombia every year.
