Q5 There is currently no significant federal budget or program devoted to fighting drug overdose through research, public education and funding local efforts. If a candidate for president promised federal support for drug overdose prevention, would that make you more likely to support or less likely to support them, or would it not make a difference?

More likely..... 41%
Less likely 14%
Wouldn't make a difference..... 44%
Not sure 1%

Q6 A drug called naloxone is successful at reversing overdose from prescription painkillers and from heroin. Naloxone acts fast, has no potential for abuse and has saved thousands of people from dying of overdose. New Hampshire passed a law last year that allows anyone to get a prescription to carry Naloxone to help save their friends and loved ones. If a candidate for president encouraged other states and the federal government to follow New Hampshire's example and adopt laws that get Naloxone in as many hands as possible, would that make you more likely to support them, less likely, or would it not make a difference?

More likely..... 44%
Less likely 12%
Wouldn't make a difference..... 43%
Not sure 1%
